BIGNEY WILL FIGHT CHARGE OF ATTEMPT TO ATTACK BRIDE

HUSBAND SEEKING WARRANT

Today before Court Clerk Edwin F. Plaster of Attleboro.

The hearing was postponed, however, for a day or two, when there was a misunderstanding concerning the lawyers.

Dufrene's charge, contained in his application for the warrant, is characterized by Colonel Bigney as false and he declares he will fight it to the end.

By Dufrene, his 15-year-old bride, Mrs. Mildred Kisel, and by Police-constable Edward E. Golin of Attleboro, the story was told today, with Colonel Bigney refusing to make any statement other than an assertion that his accusers are falsifying and that he will fight them.

BRIDE'S OWN STORY.

"We moved into this tenement a month ago," the young wife said as she sat in the flat with her husband. "On the day that Bigney was showing the tenement to me he tried to kiss me and to say, 'Don't you ever do any thing on the side.' I said that I didn't and that was all I thought of it. He didn't do anything else and I thought that he was just like a lot of others who try to pay a girl but leave her alone when she shows resentment. A few days later he dropped into the house as I was going down stairs and tried to kiss me. I told my husband that time and he advised me to be careful. On that visit Bigney asked me if I wouldn't go over to his office some time and we could pay money."

ASKED FOR REPAIRS.

"I told him, of course, that I wouldn't."

"We had asked him to have a patch on the kitchen floor varnished and he finally said he would run over and fix it himself. On Monday he did come over and I pointed out the patch."

"But he only glanced at it and walked into the living room where he looked with the radio. Then he walked into the bedroom and I called to him. While you are there, there is a leak in the ceiling."

"The leaky place was plainly visible, but he called me in to show him. He caught hold of me and said, 'Let's have a little better' and then he shoved me. I struggled and ran out, saying I wanted a drink of water, but I opened the little door leading downstairs."

"He walked out into the kitchen laughing and went away. When I told Leo that night he was furious and he said: 'By God, I'll keep watch the next time he comes here.'"

WATCHERS IN HIDING.

"Yesterday Mr. Bigney came again, as we expected, he might. My husband and his friend, Mr. Crook, hid themselves quickly behind the piano in the living room."

"Mr. Bigney went a painter away when he arrived. The painter had been working on the stairs and when he had gone, Mr. Bigney walked right through into the bedroom and called, 'This is where the leak is.' I went in then and he pushed the door closed. I cried out, 'Oh, I wish my husband were here!' which was a sign he had prepared."

"Leo and Mr. Crook burst into the room then and Leo told Mr. Crook to keep Mr. Bigney sitting in a chair just as he was, while he (Leo) telephoned the police."

POLICEMAN'S STORY.

Policeman Golin, who was sent to the house in answer to the call, said that he found the Attleboro leading citizen seated in a chair under guard of Crook.

"I looked over my shoulder, said the policeman, 'but certainly I didn't see anything else.'"

TURNING LIGHT ON 'PETTING PARTIES'

C. F. Adams, State's attorney, and W. R. Austin, special prosecutor, who are conducting government's case at trial of Sheriff Fairbanks. Several letters purporting to have been written to the Stoodley girl by the accused official are playing an important part in the case. The girl alleges she went on "petting rides" along lonely roads in the sheriff's auto.

Miss Gladys Stoodley, another sister of the sheriff's pretty accuser, is shown in right of picture as she is leaving the scene of trial in company with two women friends. She also may be called as a State witness in case to help support the charges against the veteran official. Women have attended the trial in large numbers. They have a separate "gallery" in the courtroom.

Mrs. Mildred Kisel, sister of Irma Stoodley, accuser of Vermont sheriff, she now on trial.

"I want to make an arrest there, Mr. Bigney is of much importance here. I thought we had all better go down to the police station and talk it over."

Dufrene, the husband, charged that Colonel Bigney had tricked him and that he was not really married to him, and I am going to push this just as far as I can," Dufrene declared. "Just because some of them men have a lot of money they think they can do anything they please and get away with it."

"When my wife first told me about his attempt to kiss her I told her to be very careful and not stay in the house when he came. But I never dreamed the man had nerve enough to do anything worse."

SAYS HE OFFERED CHECK.

"When Crook and I burst into the room, Bigney begged me not to send for the police and he whispered, 'Can't we fix this up with a check? I guess he thought he could buy me with a little money, too. But he can't.'"

Colonel Bigney, a native of Nova Scotia, moved to Attleboro when he was eighteen. Beginning as a janitor he built up a jewelry manufacturing business that made him one of the wealthiest of the town.

His interest in politics began early and he rose to prominence in Massachusetts Republican ranks. He is a former member of the council of the late Governor Charles G. Goff.

He was a delegate to the national convention that nominated Roosevelt for President, and with the late Henry Cabot Lodge, William Murray Crane and John D. Long, he was a delegate at large to the convention that nominated Taft.

Colonel Bigney became a close personal friend of President Taft and was frequently a visitor at the White House on his trips to Washington.

In 1914, Colonel Bigney attained unusual notoriety when the third wife of his son, Harold O. Bigney, sued him for $25,000 for alienation of affection. She was Mrs. Harriet Bigney of Jordan, who had been married twice before, and twice divorced.

Harold had been married twice before, and twice divorced. Colonel Bigney contended that the maiden wife was not really married to Harold. Harold appeared on the same view, for he went to Chicago and married his fourth wife, without taking the trouble to obtain a divorce from the third.

The third Mrs. Bigney enumerated several acts, including cutting off money, that she charged Colonel Bigney used to estrange his son from her. The case never came to trial, but was settled out of court. The amount of settlement was not divulged.

of the cockpit and escaped injury, other than a scalding.

The formation of twenty-five land and sea planes, made up of ships from the Army, Navy, National Guard and Marines, the greatest air fleet ever to fly over the city, had just passed over the State House, when Governor Fuller, watching from the balcony, when the propeller shaft in Cobb's motor snapped.

Fling apart was lost, the ship was going out of control and with the Charles River or a crowded road to choose from as a landing place, Sergt. Cobb turned his craft toward the river and it went into a spin.

All over the city crowds had their eyes turned up to the ladder skies, but because the formation was flying so low only those spectators near the Charles River saw the plane dive into the river after coming out the spin a few feet above the surface.

When the flying spray and plume had cleared away, Sergt. Cobb was seen clinging to the fuselage between the rear cockpit and the upturned tail. His observer was also hanging on, but both men had managed to scramble from their seats before the big plane hit.

Metropolitan police went to their assistance in a launch and although both men declared themselves unhurt, they were rushed to a physician's office for an inspection and treatment for immersion.

When Captain Horie H. Hosen, commanding the Army group in the formation, and flying with Cobb in

Navy Day Is Tribute to President Roosevelt

New York, Oct. 27 (A.P.).

Today, the 88th anniversary of Theodore Roosevelt's birth, has been set aside for observance throughout the country as Navy Day.

Ships were thrown open to the public in coastal towns and cities, several ceremonies planned, and radio programs arranged for the occasion.

The day was originally named to counteract any sentiment against the navy as a reaction to the war, but after the death of former President Roosevelt was designated as a tribute to him.

The first rank of the air parade, saw his comrade flip into the river, he turned and went back to the airport, where he landed and reported the crash, afterwards resuming his flight.

The Navy Yard, as in the case of all Navy bases in the country, was thrown open to the public during the entire day, and the battleship Florida, cruiser Raleigh and Cleveland and destroyers Sturtevant and Overton were inspected by the thousands that visited the yard for the observance.

Exercises were held in schools and other institutions throughout Greater Boston as part of the celebration of the day, which marks also the 88th anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt, former President, who always had the welfare of the Navy much at heart.

PONZI GIVEN UP TO BAY STATE

pending arguments, but defeated when he was called by court, although several postponements were granted.

For many days his whereabouts were a mystery. Then he was captured in New Orleans by a Texas officer who had recognized him aboard an Italian ship at Houston and had followed him to the Gulf port.

For four months he fought extradition, with two hearings being held before Governor Miriam Ferguson, before she honored the requisition of Governor Fuller of Pennsylvania for delivery to Massachusetts authorities.

When Assistant Attorney-General Alfred H. Burdette of the Bay State, who won two victories in the long fight to return Ponzi here, heard of the court order to turn him out of Texas, he said:

"Ponzi will probably appeal to the United States Supreme Court. If he does I will oppose the appeal. The forthcoming effort of Ponzi will be his last stand. I believe we can again defeat him, as we have in Texas court."

"I live long enough I am going to bring that man back, prevent him to the court and say I am here. In the event the United States Court decides in Ponzi's favor, Ponzi can reside in Texas and as long as he does not leave that State will be outside the jurisdiction of Massachusetts."

that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Even before caretaker Fisher had performed his act of arson, another servant, Paula Sherer, housekeeper, had done woman work in rousing the occupants of the house.

As soon as she saw that the ambassador and his father were safe, she called nurse Anna Patricia and the maid, Mrs. Otto Kerndt, all brought from Vienna by the ambassador and his wife, in the attempt to save Mrs. Washburn's jewelry and important legal papers, which were located in a safe.

The butler managed to open the safe, but the best had been so great that the settings of all the jewelry had been melted, while a precious string of pearls was entirely destroyed.

The house sits back from the main road almost two miles so that before the fire department from Fallmouth was able to reach the place, the only part of the house saved was an isolated wing in which the servants are quartered.

Mrs. Washburn and her son, Leo, were at the Hotel Touraine, Boston, during the night, and knew nothing of their loss until they were informed by questioners today.

While the police suspect firebugs, Ambassador Washburn himself is inclined to believe that the fire started in the chimney. Before it went to bed last night he sat for some time reading before the open fireplace in the library.

MAY DYNAMITE $500,000 STILL

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Federal prohibition agents today seized the largest still ever found in New Jersey—a plant valued at half a million dollars and so they said it would have to be dynamited because it is too huge to be dismantled.

The plant was capable of a daily output of 4,000 gallons of "moonshine," according to the agents.

The largest included, according to William B. Barrow of Newark, raid leader: One 4,000 gallon still; six 1,000 gallon stills; three 2,000 gallon stills; two column stills, a new and unique design in "rulers" experience; of 15 and 25 gallon capacity; four wood vats, and three 400 gallon rectifiers.

TWO QUAKES IN MISSOURI

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Rather weak earth tremors were felt here from 10:22 to 10:25 o'clock today. Windows were shaken but no damage was done.

A second tremor was felt at 10:25:45 and continued until 10:32. It was more severe than the first. Buildings in the downtown section of the city were shaken severely but no damage was reported.

Constantinople, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Soviet officials here today received reports from British sources stating more than 4,000 persons were killed or injured in the earthquake in Armenia.

The villages of Alanchen, Yedigirazi and Dermandine were destroyed. Churches along the coast from Giresun to Erzurum suffered heavily.

The Near East Relief is calling for the homeless and the Transcaucasian Federation has sent 20,000 rubles for the relief of the sufferers.

BOSTON AMERICAN GENERAL

WIFE-SLAYER, 56, WED TO GIRL, 18

John Frisone, 56, father of ten children, who is alleged to have slain and killed his wife "because she nagged him for fifteen years," according to police, pleaded not guilty to a charge of first degree murder in Lynn court today and was held without bail for the grand jury.

Police have begun a quest for John Frisone's eldest son, who left home yesterday following a quarrel with his father about work. It is believed the youth can shed new light on the motive for the slaying.

WEDS YOUNG GIRL.
Friends of Frisone in the Italian community have started a fund to defray expenses for his trip.

It developed today that Frisone left his family six years ago, went to Italy and married an 18-year-old girl after deserting her to return to his family in Lynn, police stated today.

Rendered motherless by their father's act, the ten children were today instructed that he be given the extreme penalty of the law, Joseph, 14, solemnly told of the tragedy, and said that when his mother fell after being shot, she cried:

QUARRELS BARRED.
"I'm sorry. May God help him. The shooting took place just after supper. According to Frisone, he and his wife were in the parlor. Mrs. Frisone, the slayer said, started to nag him, so he drew the pistol and generally kept at his early store and shot his wife once through the left temple. She died instantly.

The children of the couple, who reside at home, tell a different story. They charge that Frisone has often threatened his wife and had at-

TAXI DRIVER IN WILD RIDE, GUN AT HIS BACK

Harold Ford of Albia street, Albia, is a good taxi driver, but he never drove as quickly or clumsily as he did for two hours early today while a drug-depot man with a well-deserved woman held a gun at his back.

Speeding in hope that a policeman would pursue him, Ford was followed by a policeman who was driving a car. Then he was followed by a policeman who was driving a car. Then he was followed by a policeman who was driving a car.

Finally the passengers alighted at Northampton and Fulton streets. Ford, accompanied by two traffic officers, kept the taxi today. The man and woman, waiting from a luncheon, fled when they sighted the police.

Ford said he had picked up the pair at midnight and when they had descended 12 words thought it best to call, which he did.

SOCIETY GIRLS AND SALLIES

Society girls of Greater Boston have joined with more than 200 business men and women actively engaged in the Salvation Army drive to raise $145,000 for the organization's general headquarters fund. With the drive heavily underway, 50 female auxiliaries had more than $200,000 had been collected.

One of the features of the same drive will be the sale of the same "Sally's" which will be admitted. The show will be presented by a group of society girls.

The girls have already been held and Betty Blythe, actress and singer, will assume a role when it is presented. She will also deliver a benefit talk at the performance.

The finale, called by the "Sallys" will be toward maintaining the 74 headquarters and institutions of the Army.

FOOTBALL PLAYER IN MYSTERY SHOOTING

Woodbury, N. J., Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Roger Brown, 17, a member of the football team of the Clayton, N. J. High School, is in a critical condition in the Underwood Hospital here from two bullet wounds in the head which police said were self-inflicted.

The youth's parents said he had no reason to attempt to take his life, but school authorities asserted he had neglected his studies and was depressed. Fellow students described Brown as a trouble with a girl.

Found Dead in "Sally" Home
Frederick H. Farnsworth, aged 12 years, was found dead in bed at the dormitory of the Salvation Army Home at No. 11 Vernon street, Roxbury. A physician was summoned who pronounced death due to natural causes. Medical Examiner Leary ordered the body removed to the morgue.

NEW! DIFFERENT! GREAT FLAVOR!

First real improvement on oats

Most people think of all oat cereals as being pretty much alike. And here of people want a change—something different—something better than oatmeal.

Here is a new hot cereal that is really different. Kellogg's New Oats—a remarkable new kind of oats and whole wheat, including the bran. This new cereal is made by Kellogg in Battle Creek—in the same wonderful kitchen where Kellogg's Corn Flakes, All Bran and Pop are made. It is a blend of both oats and wheat—combining the beneficial elements of both with an entirely new, installing taste that is a welcome change. A nutritious balanced food, wonderful for children.

And easy to prepare! Just cook New Oats three minutes in boiling water. It is then ready to serve. Light, fluffy in texture. Never messy or sticky like ordinary oatmeal.

Think of all these advantages. Try it! Your grocer has Kellogg's New Oats.

U. S. EMBASSY IN PARIS PLACED UNDER GUARD

Paris, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—The police here, reacting against the anarchy and chaos against the American embassy and consulate in connection with the conviction of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti of murder in Massachusetts, are taking every precaution to guard the embassy, as an expression of the refusal of the court at Dedham to grant the men a writ.

The officials of the embassy and consulate have not asked the police to make the additional assignments of guards.

 Queen Marie as she arrived in America, fresh and anxious to be on the go after a long rest aboard ship following a month of shopping in Paris.

Banish Sneering Cynics, Queen Marie Pleads

By QUEEN MARIE OF ROMANIA
 Have a care of those who sneer, of those who take the bloom off all things of those who make your enthusiasm seem small and ridiculous.

of those who with terse airy make you feel inferior because you do not know. They live to pull things to pieces, to darken what is light by passing through their dismaying will to that is dear and holy.

You ought to inspire us older ones with a feeling of reverence, with an ardent desire to preserve as long as possible that pure flame of enthusiasm which throws a light over the beginning of the road.

Life for the young is like a beautiful morning. The dew is still on all things, the sun has not yet risen, the dust has not yet overpowering grass and trees with the colour of depression.

Each good sense reaches, every vision real, all hopes fulfillable, all ideas sturdy enough to carry us through to the end.

We women—ones ought to love his order which was ours once, but it is to be there with a helping hand at the hour when disappointment will inevitably show its teeth.

Old mothers, keep the cynics, the pessimists the children out of the lives of your children as long as you can. (The Queen's speech, 1920, Famous Feature Magazine, Vol. 1, No. 1.)

TOM MAGGART IN KLAN PROBE

Indianapolis, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Thomas Maggart, for years a power in Democratic circles, and Charles A. Gresham, Democratic national committee man for Indiana, are today before the Marjorie Quinn and jury investigating charges of political corruption in the State.

They were in the jury room for about fifteen minutes. They were followed by William H. Amittage, local Republican politician and David Gorley, managing editor of the Indianapolis Times.

It was believed Maggart and Gresham were asked if they knew of any effort by the Ku Klux Klan to get power within the Democratic ranks. The Grand Jury investigation hinges around statements alleged to have been made by H. C. Stephenson, in which he asserted the Klan controlled some of the public and Republican politicians while he was grand dragon of the hooded order a few years ago.

the theatre to hear Challepin sing the "Barber of Seville."

During the early part of the royal itinerary Prince Nicholas visited the railway terminal, visited the shops and yards and taking with truck makers, engineers and workmen.

It was revealed today that an American coach furnished the costume of the Queen's royal suite aboard her "rolling palace."

Charles McCullough, the royal barber, operates this soft drink bar. The great American barber, the well-known hair cream soda, is the royal family's favorite refreshment.

"Her Majesty frequently asks for seconds," McCullough asserts proudly, "she is a fine lady. Every time she comes she asks good morning or good afternoon."

When the royal train arrived here it was discovered that the Queen's royal banner had been lost and on. The train's loss is believed to be a "souvenir" hater. The Queen has sent some for another to replace the missing standard.

There are other details about the train losses McCullough says. The Queen who "swear by" her "rolling palace" is a very busy woman.

"I don't know anything about queens, but she is a lady," said Mrs. J. Williams, who carries the royal coat of arms. "I have seen the guided caravans they call Samuel Cook has only 'RICK'."

The last thing I do for Her Majesty for Princess or the Prince, they smile and say: 'Thank you so much,' said Samuel.

Big Demand for Coupons

Homemakers
ContestQuestion
Number 2How can you judge the freshness of fish?

Answer _____

cut on the dotted line

Demand for back numbers of the Boston Evening American were so large, that it was necessary to re-print the contest up to the tenth question in the Martha Lee Homemakers' Contest.

In order to make it convenient for those wishing to enter the contest now, thousands of these reprints have been distributed to the Atlantic and Pacific Stores and the Economy Grocery Stores for free distribution. So when you go in for your groceries, just ask for a copy, and join the rest of the women of New England.

Even if you already have the questions up to date answered, and carefully put away for the mailing day at the end of the contest, get an extra copy and enter two sets or more. There is no limit on the number of sets each contestant may enter, although only one prize will be awarded to each of the forty winners.

Now that's a timely and pertinent question. And it calls for good practical knowledge that every woman should know.

Five hundred dollars goes to the winner of the first prize, one hundred and fifty to the second. The winner of the third prize will get $75, the fourth $50 and the fifth $25. Not many of us would refuse one of the $10 checks which goes to the next ten prize winners, or send back the $1 checks which go to the following twenty-five winners.

No one in New England is better fitted for the task of considering your efforts. Miss Alice Bradley, one of the judges, is the principal of the First School of Cookery, Mrs. Ida M. Hubbard is the president of the Housekeepers' League, and Martha Lee is the housewife economist of the Boston Evening American.

Answers must be submitted in complete sets of thirty-three, arranged in order. Then mail your sets, postage fully prepaid at first class, to the Homemakers' Contest, Judge, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 119, Boston, Mass.

The contest is wide open to everyone, except those employed at the Boston Evening American, and at affiliated newspapers, and their families.

FORMER CORNER HELD FOR GIRL OPERATION

Camden, N. J., Oct. 27.—(A.P.)—Charged with reforming an unprofessional operation, Dr. David S. Bentley, twice indicted for child molestation, was imprisoned in the county jail today in default of $10,000 bail.

Witnesses testified that a 21-year old school teacher had died from an operation performed by Bentley, William Martin, 22, Hazlet, Pa., and Mrs. Anna Corbett, Camden, a nurse, in whose home the young woman died. There would be compensation in default of $5,000 bail each. Martin was to have been the school teacher's sweetheart.

MANY DRIVEN MAD BY
QUAKE IN ARMENIA

Moscow, Oct. 27 (U.P.)—After four days and nights of uninterrupted rescue work, American Near East Relief workers at Leningrad were still telling today to alive victims of the recent Armenian earthquake.

Official reports revealed that the catastrophe was worse than the first estimates, and if it is now said there are 855 identified dead and 8,800 homeless, and the dead amounts to more than 100,000,000.

Severe earthquakes drove many to madness. Twenty persons are reported to have died of heart failure.

GIVE COWS VIOLET RAYS
AND IODINE; BETTER MILK

Philadelphia, Oct. 27.—Ultra violet rays used on cows plus a diet of iodine as contained in seaweed, are improving milk, and if children drink more of it, also cod liver oil and fruit juices, they would not have rickets. So speakers have informed the International Association of Dairy and Milk Inspectors.

Second $2,000.00 in PRIZES

His Wife said:—

"Why the change, Henry?"

"You used to follow the early morning smoke with an early morning grouch... with plenty of sputtering and coughing."

"Change" is right, dearest," the husband replied.

"I changed my cigarette—and lost the throat-tickle."

"I switched to OLD GOLD."

A lot of men have made that change lately... and with it have made a big discovery. They found out for the first time that a real be-man's cigarette doesn't need to be harsh and irritating. Coarseness doesn't mean strength. A fine cigarette, like a fine full-bodied cigar, is smooth and mellow. That's OLD GOLD. The smoothest cigarette of all time! You can smoke them and enjoy them morning, noon and night, without regret or after-effect.

NOW starts the second of the Lorillard headline contests—with another $2,000 in cash prizes!

The Lorillard Company is seeking a crackpot headline for the above advertisement, which will be published later on in all the newspapers of New England.

Everybody is invited to compete. What is the charming wife in the picture saying to her husband? He is smoking an Old Gold Cigarette while engaged in the morning's shaving. And he is a happy mood. What is she asking him?

Headline suggestions must be not over ten words—including the three last words—"HIS WIFE SAID:" that gives you a maximum of seven words to add.

52 prizes totaling $2,000 will be awarded for the 52 headlines which most cleverly get over the point of this advertisement... in the opinion of the judges.

1. The shorter the headline, the better. It is sent over the post.

(4) Originality, cleverness, brevity, business and legibility will count.

(5) Send your suggestion on the coupon of this advertisement, or a sheet of white paper, written on one side of the sheet only, with your full name and address, and right to use as it may suggest as you like but each suggestion must be on a separate sheet of paper or coupon, separately signed with your full name and address.

(6) In the event that several persons submit the same winning headline, with equal business and equal respect for the above conditions, the prize for that headline will be divided equally among them.

(7) The Lorillard Company reserves the right to use as it may suggest as you like but each suggestion must be on a separate sheet of paper or coupon, separately signed

Passes Up Chance to Entertain Queen

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 27.—Becky Gardner is a working girl. More over she is proud of it and she has before her social duties. How do I know? Well, as it happened, Miss Gardner was asked to be hostess to the Queen of Rumania and refused on the score that she was too busy with her scenario work to accept the invitation.

Governor Ritchie of Maryland, who bestowed this honor upon Miss Gardner, was not exactly pleased with her refusal to leave her typewriter. You see, he is her uncle, and being a Bachelor he calls upon his favorite niece to do the honors at the State Capitol when Queen Marie visits Maryland.

When I think what some of the other people in the movie world give to be able to mention in an old-hand way.

When Queen Marie was to depart this other night, I am forced to relate this story as an event in movie news.

In fact, Marion's visit in New York had only started and she left the big city with a long list of engagements unfilled.

"I know exactly how I feel," said Marion, "when she has to go to work, leaving the typewriter before she has finished her engagements."

Miss Davies was accompanied back to the coast by her mother, Mrs. Rose Davies, and her sister, Ethel Davies. Although part of Marion's visit to New York was to do some shopping of her own, Marion's wardrobe occupied all her time so she didn't have much opportunity to do any shopping for herself.

CONWAY TEARLE SENDS ME A TELEGRAM. He says:

"Your statement in today's paper regarding my future activities is utterly untrue and damaging. I am sure you would not wish that I am aware that I am not one of the favored many about whom you say nice things in your column. Still there is no particular need to be sarcastic about my overweighing weight of years, is there? You are quite old enough yourself to know better than to be needlessly rude. (Signed) Conway Tearle."

What more can I say? I received exceedingly having cast Mr. Tearle opposite Patricia Dainton, when such is not the case. I offer my apologies. As for the discussion of years, let us not go into it.

I admit my accusations and confess I am about to patronize Fannie Ward's beauty shop.

Quick Glances on the Movies

By BARBARA BENTON

F. R. G. MIDDOT—William Boyd is married to Elaine Page. You can find them together in "The Volcanic." Bill was a super hero in that one and now a certain kind of wig to give him that distinguished "Duke" Williams look. As Elaine was the prettiest picture whom he was supposed to "marry," Bill probably got the idea right from the start. He won't all the way through with it, none but the brave deserve the fair.

H. C. E. SOMMERVILLE—Ladies are married to the Foxes, but he has been called back to the legitimate stage for a reason or two. Fox West Coast studio ought to send you his photograph if you ask them—and send a quarter for it. Mr. Foxton was born in England in 1901. He is an American agent and actor. He weighs 160 pounds, five feet, five inches, dark hair, gray eyes. And there you are.

Do you know why our prisons and reformatories are largely filled with young lawbreakers who, in different clothes, might pass for college graduates? For the answer, read "Let's Talk at the Home" in November

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING

—JUST OUT

Good Housekeeping's survey of the causes of the lawlessness of youth reaches its climax in this issue, wherein authorities who deal with youth after the home has failed, tell what can be done to halt the stampede of the younger generation.

To Relieve Sick Headache

That dull throbbing pain all through your head which torments you after eating, is usually due to some digestive disturbance. To ease it, drink a glass of cool water containing one level teaspoonful of baking soda, either ARMA, HARMER BRAND or COLE BRAND—this is most effective in correcting digestive troubles caused by acidity.

Both of these widely used brands of baking soda are made by Church & Dwight Co., Inc. and both are the same product—pure bicarbonate of soda of the highest quality, bottled in the whole family unit in cooking but also in condense other important ways—get a package today to your grocer's.

NEEDS LARGER TELESCOPES TO STUDY MARS

Chicago, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—Mars, the ruddy world of mystery about which astronomers have speculated for hundreds of years, is not likely to yield much more information concerning its physical aspects until larger and more powerful telescopes are made.

This was the opinion of astronomer John F. Johnson, who has been studying the planet for many years. He said that the only way to get a better view of Mars is to use larger telescopes.

ANY MAN, big financier or little paragon, practicing avarice and calling it brotherly love deserves what he may get. And some of those who are "going up" various foreign bonds may not be so happy when the next little fuss comes in Europe.

Russian $100 bonds are now selling at 110. Wall Street, at 114 apiece, and worth two cents a pound for old paper unless Russia can be blackmailed into paying them.

It might be wiser in the long run to invest in American cotton. The trouble is that the big fellows save the bonds along to the investors, and they do the crying when the time comes for redemption.

THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE GETS THIS NOTICE

New Orleans:

Many cotton planters are reporting that recent frost has begun to pick their own cotton on the ground. The frost has been reported in many places, and the cotton is beginning to turn.

Science tells you that the trouble comes from our sun, a giant market with electric storms and huge fire spheres, in which our earth would be lost like a snowflake in the void.

WALSH, BUTLER IGNORE LEAGUE SUPPORTERS

BUTLER SLOGAN ANSWERED BY CLOSED MILLS

By THOMAS F. FHELAN
The battle cry of "prosperity" used by Senator William M. Butler for the opening of the campaign has been dropped in favor of another slogan, "closed mills," at rallies in Worcester and Milford. Butler, who is running for re-election to the Senate, has been accused of having blocked the passage of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which would have closed the mills of the United States.

NEWBERRY REVIVED
AS MICHIGAN ISSUE
Detroit, Oct. 27 (A.P.)—James A. Newberry, who was defeated in 1924, has been revived as a Michigan issue in the campaign for the U. S. Senate. Butler, who is running for re-election to the Senate, has been accused of having blocked the passage of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which would have closed the mills of the United States.

Called "Influencing."
Mr. Walsh characterized the plan of the organization as "influencing and humiliating." "I feel that Senator Butler, a member of the important committee on foreign relations, ought to say where he stands," he said. "I also think it incumbent on Mr. Walsh to answer."

LETTER SEEKS GASTON VOTES

Arranging the Republican state convention as "definitely by so" "all expediency and personal ambition" and urging that Thomas Walsh, former United States Senator, be elected. The letter was signed by a group of public workers in the state, including the former head of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters, who is running for the U. S. Senate.

SAYS COLONEL IS LOBBYIST FOR 'EL'

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY.
Out at Colonel William G. O'Brien, who is "come out" in the race, is "a lobbyist for 'El'." Governor Fuller, who is running for re-election to the Governorship, has been accused of having blocked the passage of the National Industrial Recovery Act, which would have closed the mills of the United States.

RED WANTS HIS CRACK AT CROWN

Chelsea Featherweight to Insist on Meeting Finnegan-Suggs Bout Victor

By JACK CONWAY

RED CHAPMAN will demand a match with the winner of the world's featherweight championship battle between Honeyboy Finnegan and Chick Suggs which will be staged in this city on November 8. As Finnegan and Suggs have agreed to defend the championship belt in a Boston ring within 90 days from the date of their contest, Chapman probably will be able to realize his ambition.

Red is far from being a back number in the fight world. He is a proven winner and has a record of 10 wins and 10 losses.

Dempsey, Rich, Likely to Quit Ring Game, Tex Rickard Fears

NEW YORK, Oct. 27 (I.N.S.)—Some doubt was expressed by Tex Rickard today as to whether Jack Dempsey, the former heavyweight champion, really intended to attempt a comeback next Summer. He intimated that Dempsey, independently rich, was wavering between distaste for the annoyances of training and a desire to recoup his wounded vanity over his loss of the title to Gene Tunney.

"Dempsey still is young and can make plenty of money next Summer because of his undoubted drawing power," Rickard said. "However, he has all the money he needs and I'm a bit afraid he may decide the whole thing is too much trouble. That decision rests with him."

Rickard's plans for Dempsey will be discussed in detail by the promoter and fighter today.

CARPIGAN BANS SOX PILOT JOB

Former Manager Denies He Will Return to the National Pastime

Lexington, Me., Oct. 27 (A.P.)—It was reported that Bill Carpigian would return to the Boston Red Sox as manager, but Carpigian denied this report today. It had been reported that Carpigian, who managed the Boston American League baseball club in 1924 when the Red Sox were championship contenders, might be asked by President Quinn to return.

Carpigian said today that he had not been offered the post, and added that he has no intention of returning to the Sox as manager.

BROWN'S BULWARK OF DEFENSE

Meet Red Randall, the sensational Brown quarterback, whose high and long-distance spirals will give the Dartmouth eleven plenty of trouble in the battle at Hanover next Saturday. Randall was one of the big factors in the Bruins victory over Yale in New Haven last Saturday. His sensational work on the grid field this season will cause those experts picking all-American team to give him consideration.

"Are you satisfied?" Blair demanded as he continued to stare at the girl's sick.

"We better beat it before he comes," Gibson warned.

"He's screaming again," the woman shrieked.

"Good night!" several boys yelled in unison.

Just before Blair scattered.

Just before Blair and Gibson separated, Blair, with a laugh, asked, "One difficulty is gone."

"What?" Gibson asked.

"Well, Ruth is a mighty fine girl. I liked her the moment I first saw her. But I couldn't go with her as long as a Wainy."

"What?" Blair asked.

"Hop to it, old man," he declared.

"I'll be back," Blair promised.

"Dance at your wedding," she said.

We, Eated by All the World, Live in a Fools' Paradise

An appropriate topic of thought for Navy Day is the size, strength and quality which American interest requires of the American Navy.

Six years ago the United States was well on the way to having the most powerful navy in the world. That would have been fitting for the world's richest nation.

We needed it less then than now, for then the remainder of the world was profuse in flattery, whereas today it is envious, full of hate and concerned with plans for our crippling, if not destruction.

Clever British diplomats, to head us off, started the propaganda which led to the calling of the Washington conference of 1921 for the limitation of armaments.

We thought we were very clever when we convened that body, but it ended with our having thrown away our hold on the Pacific Ocean—as Seward said, "the next theatre of the world's great events."

It ended with the bootless sacrifice of our ability to defend the Philippines, safeguard our commerce with the Orient and hold Hawaii as a sentinel of safety for our west coast. It ended in our agreeing to a naval ratio of 5-5-3 for our selves, Britain and Japan. But the ratio affected only capital ships above 10,000 tons. On smaller craft and on merchant vessels—indispensable as auxiliaries in time of war—no limit was fixed.

There is no competent naval authority who does not believe that our acceptance of this subordinate role was an act of stupendous folly.

Let us see where it has placed us amid the world's growing hatred, which makes concerted attack probably only a question of time.

In present battleship strength—we scrapped nearly two tons to Britain's one—we are 55,000 tons weaker than Britain and only 224,000 tons stronger than Japan.

In carriers for aircraft—the basis of future fleet protection, because, without command of the air, ships on the sea's surface are at the enemy's mercy—we are 26,000 tons weaker than Britain and only 15,000 tons stronger than Japan.

In modern cruisers of all types we are 309,000 tons weaker than Britain and 61,000 tons weaker than Japan.

In destroyers we have nominally 98,000 tons the advantage of Britain and 189,000 tons the advantage of Japan, but most of our destroyers were laid down in haste during our frantic war waste and are rusty and of doubtful value. Our supremacy in this category is on paper only.

In submarines we lead Britain by 15,000 tons, but are 16,000 tons weaker than Japan.

So it appears that in the matter of tonnage, far from being abreast of Britain, as the boasted 5-5-3 ratio would imply, we are dangerously lagging.

That, however, is only part of the story. There is also the matter of personnel, for ships are useless without trained men to operate them.

The navy of the United States, in its regular establishment, is shy of the ratio by 534 officers and 14,230 men.

In reserve personnel it has 8,037 officers to 3,945 officers in the Japanese naval reserve and 10,425 officers in the naval reserve of Great Britain. The reserves of trained men rank as follows:

United States, 25,030.
Great Britain, 64,742.
Japan, 153,980.

The worst is yet to come. Much of our entire production is marketed abroad. We carry only a little more than one-third of this foreign commerce in our own merchant ships.

Britain, Germany and Japan in peace take the bulk of our carrying tolls. In war they could wipe us from the sea. Right now Britain has 309 merchant vessels of from 15 to 19 knots' speed to our 51—a ratio of better than SIX TO ONE.

We are living in a fools' paradise when we believe that the world will soon disarm, or forever let us alone if we lower our guard.

Americans, wake up!

Freedom to Wed

Revolutions have unexpected consequences. One of the outcomes of the one in Germany was to give the liberated royalties a chance to marry the ones they choose.

The recent divorce and remarriage of the Princess Eitel Friedrich, whose first husband was a son of the Kaiser, is a case in point. How she must bless the revolution. Her husband, too, is soon to reward.

We scarcely realize our luck in America, where we marry because of inclination and suitability. Surely, that is a better way than having one's life partner chosen for geographical reasons.

Secret of Good Writing

The secret of effective writing is to have something to say, then to say it simply.

Peter B. Kyne, who writes effectively, offers a good recipe for having something to say. He says: "I never write about anything I am not familiar with through long acquaintance."

Know your subject—the writing will then take care of itself.

Municipal Air Fields

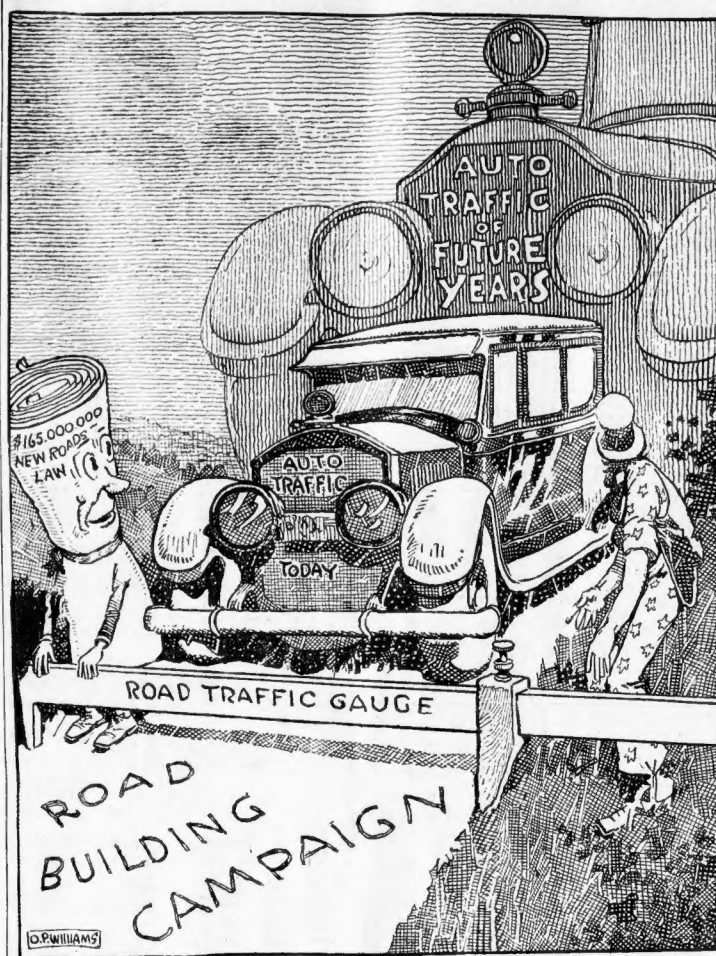

Recognizing that a lack of municipal flying fields hampers commercial aviation Assistant Secretary of Commerce McCracken suggests a flying field for every city.

Wide-awake cities will add to the attractions of a municipal playground a municipal golf course, a tourist camp and a first-class library, a well-equipped flying field.

Trade is coming by air, and those who prepare for it will get it.

Have the Car Behind in Mind

By O. P. Williams

Odds and Ends of the Town

By THE STAFF
NOT GUILTY.

THE incessant hum of voices of lawyers, police officers and defendants outside the second session of the Suffolk Superior Court was brought to an abrupt silence by the sound of a bottle falling with resounding force upon the marble tiled floor. Officers were on the alert to discover the miscreant who carried contraband liquor into the sacred precincts. Pretty soon a baby boy toddled out from between the benches clutching a nursing bottle which was none the worse for its fall. And CLERIC JOHN P. MANNING, JR., went n with the business of the court.

DEMI TASSE.
After-dinner speakers may come and go, but members of the ASSOCIATED INDUSTRIES, among them LORING YOUNG and COLONEL CHARLES R. GOW are firm in their belief that DR. GILES or ORANGE, N. J., who entertained them at a recent banquet, is a class by himself. The doctors will produce many laughs, one in particular when he "accused" the manufacturers of dressing women so that a person couldn't tell whether they were headed for the opera or an operation.

FREE LUNCH.
Blushing girls and stammering grooms are provided with cookies and gingerbread after they are married by a HINGHAM pastor. REV. C. F. SCHULTZ, the pastor, is the why. "I want to start them happy with something to eat. This talk about trying to be happy is well to eat and drink and you can give them free lunch and also say good things to them about the future."

CABBAGE.
"ED" BRADLEY, middleweight boxer, one of the few who play professional football, is in the best physical condition to win an occasional game of watermelon and to slaw. He says there is more horsepower in cabbage than any other vegetable in the world.

DEVILISH METHOD OF TAXATION

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WE have all sorts of pernicious schemes of taxation in the United States. We levy a tax upon thrift; we burden production, and set a premium upon extravagance; we seem wholly committed to the Bolshevik theory of the income tax, and we so far have refused to accept the theory of the much more rational sales tax; we have turned our backs upon the single taxers.

And yet we have something to be thankful for. There is a device in Europe that is particularly agreeable which so far we have escaped. It is another ingenious Robin Hood and pestiferous method of the government for wringing money out of the people.

It is called the octroi.

It means that a tax is levied upon all produce that is brought into the city.

In addition to having tax collectors at the ports where goods are brought in from foreign countries, they have tax collectors at the gates of the city who industriously examine all carts and wagons and levy a few cents' tax on every pound of beef and every bundle of vegetables.

The amount paid of course is quite insignificant, but it is none the less annoying.

The question must occur to a man up a tree who governs when they want money should not ask the people directly for it instead of using such round-about methods as tariffs and income tax and octroi.

The only answer seems to be that nobody wants to pay taxes at all, and the most successful tax is the one that is levied most indirectly.

Taxing seems to be a matter regulated on the Robin Hood theory, which consists of despoiling those who have and sparing those who have not.

No pretense is made that this is just. The only pretense is that those who have plenty ought not to equal. They are lucky to have money wherewith to pay the taxes.

The result is that we tax industry and production, whereas we should tax prodigality and expenditure.

The octroi seems to be the most ingeniously devilish method yet devised for taxing the people.

Astronomy an Education

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"I have a friend who says as traveling has no counterpart with our daily life, I appeal to you for an article on the relation of astronomy to our everyday life—R. H. H. to our everyday life."

"It would be idle to cast before your friend the consideration that of all sciences astronomy exercises the greatest broadening and uplifting mental influence, for he comprehends only what he regards as 'advantages' on the lower and narrower plane of this 'short life.' But you have him even there."

"If he is ignorant of the manner in which the time element in terrestrial affairs is derived and maintained, that he has failed to understand the fundamental principles of astronomy."

The basis of time measurement is the rotation of the earth on its axis. This gives the unit of duration called a day. The revolution of the earth around the sun gives the unit of duration called a year. Now, it may be that year from history, but what is called the unit of time obtained from the earth cannot be continuously applied in human affairs without incessant astronomical observation.

No watch, or clock, or chronometer can be made that will last indefinitely or that will run with perfect accuracy. All such mechanisms have to be replaced from time to time and our daily lives are constantly corrected to keep them in accord with the astronomical observations which they are based.

This is the basis of the observatory. If the observatory were closed, it is not that that it is an exaggeration to say every watch and clock in the world would soon go wrong and all time-keeping of every description would fall into confusion.

All coordination would cease, and travel, traffic, industry, commerce together with all the complicated adjustments of civilized life would become hopelessly entangled.

The impertinence of human instruments is not the sole cause of the need for continued astronomical observation and calculation to keep our time reckonings in order.

We Make More Shoes

A Few Words on New England Industry

There is so much in the newspapers and in the oratory the moment about the depression in cotton textiles that it is pleasing to be reminded that New England's eggs are not in one basket.

Thanks are due to Mr. John F. Tinsley, vice-president of a general manager of the Crumpton & Knowles Loom works of Worcester, for light on the subject.

"United States census figures," Mr. Tinsley says, "would dictate that New England is losing ground principally in two major industries, cotton goods and boots and shoes. These two lines comprise about twenty per cent. of New England's entire manufacturing output."

And almost on the same day, the Census Bureau, in dispatches from Washington, reports cheering indications that in New England shoe industry is "doing something more than merely holding its own."

During the first half of the present year, the total production of boots and shoes in the United States was 164,309,000 pairs.

Which State ranked first?

MASSACHUSETTS, having ousted New York.

The Bay State produced 35,120,225 pairs; New York, 4,387,876; Missouri and Illinois together, 33,909,298; New Hampshire, 8,014,764; Maine, 8,754,809; Ohio, 6,858,876; Pennsylvania, 8,061,771; Wisconsin, 7,838,767; all other States, 9,701,394.

The shoe manufacturers of New England long have realized exactly what they have to meet in the way of keen competition. THEY are "on their toes," as the saying is. This has been a good year in the industry. No one doubts that there are better ones coming.

That leaves only the cotton textile industry sick enough to have the doctor, and there are so many physicians in attendance, and so many differences of opinion among them, that it is difficult to say exactly what ails the distinguished patient.

But the cotton mills are not the whole shooting match in New England, as the Government figures show, and at just this time it is good that all our people should remember the fact.

"The future of New England industry," to quote again from Mr. Tinsley, "is NOT bedecked with gloom. We have a difficult problem to be sure, to hold our own with the rest of the country, but with proper appreciation of the situation, based upon facts, devoid of prejudices and with renewed confidence in our ability to cope with our tasks, we may look forward to a New England of the future which will be as vigorous as the New England of the past."

Living to Be a Hundred

When a woman died at the age of one hundred and four recently in Cowes, England, it was noted that her mother and two of her sister had also lived to be centenarians.

Long life is an inherited characteristic—like big feet. The best assurance of living to be a hundred is to pick a papa and mamma who live to be centenarians.

If you can only choose one, advises Professor Dorsey, it is better to take a long-lived father than a long-lived mother.

Children of fathers who lived to a great old age have, as a rule, a better chance to live long than those whose mothers were the most long lived.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

A LICE REAL PARSONS thinks that housework and mothering should be part-time jobs.

She says so in a book called "Woman's Dilemma." It is an extremely interesting, clever book and you should read it. But for agreeing with the world's another matter.

Mrs. Parsons starts with the assumption that a woman has a dilemma. The dilemma being that she has to stick around the house when she's rather got out with the gang. Mrs. Parsons does not state it in this crude manner.

She handles her subject with great astuteness and a wealth of psychological and sociological detail. But back of all her scintillating rhetoric is the profound conviction that housekeeping and baby tending is an inferior and that it is unfair and economically wasteful to expect women to give their whole lives to it.

Are a lot of down-trodden Victorian girls to agree with that? I'd say they're right.

Mrs. Parsons believes that women are not the "weaker sex," either physically or mentally. And she agrees with great skill, that the job of a woman is to be a mother and a housewife.

Will grant it. But what of the industrial world as her husband?

The average man is a dull sort of a chap and his job is as mediocre as his capacity. His wife is so more of a world better than he is, and the job she would hold down would be equally mediocre and poorly paid. Parke the stress with her or drama than her present job as housewife. And it would be no greater chance to develop her character.

What would it profit to flood an already overcrowded market, with more unskilled labor, thereby reducing the wages to an even lower level? And who's going to take the place of the deserted home while Mrs. Parsons is about the house with her John looking for a 4 per day job?

Mrs. Parsons thinks the home will get along very nicely. We wonder how the industrial world will get along.

And now are you going to better your own lot by enlisting under the banner of the domestic goddess and the housewife. Not that she says very much about youngsters. For some reason Mrs. Parsons rather evades the child problem.

She says she is forced to see it, she speaks of it as though it were a more matter of food and clothes and intelligent, but detached, supervision. But it's more than that, lady—much, much more.

A child needs love and sympathy and subtle, humorous understanding even more than he needs vitamins and E. You can schedule cooking and cleaning and sewing on a part-time basis. You can have these things performed by servants or substitutes. But you can't schedule mothering so that it will fit in with your office hours. You can't regulate little Bill so that he will confess his youthful misdeeds and ask his reluctant questions and make his tremendous confidence and do his spontaneous confiding between the hour of 5:45 and 7:45 when you depart for your committee meeting.

I CAN GIVE YOU JUST FIVE MINUTES, JAMES. HAVE YOU ANYTHING TO CONFIDE IN ME?

YOU'VE GOT TO STICK AROUND THE HOUSE! GIVE UP YOUR EXPECT TO GIVE UP TO YOUR OFFERING IN ALL HIS ELUSIVE MOODS. WHEN HE BE A BABY OR AN ADOLLESCENT. And if you're fit to bear the name of mother you'll know that Getting Next to the office is the main part of the job until you're a mother.

And now are you going to better your own lot by enlisting under the banner of the domestic goddess and the housewife. Not that she says
